

Dear California Coastal Commission,

Our class has been assigned us to write a letter describing why we are doing this and then give our understanding of the situation and then make our recommendations. So I am writing from PMS as a student. It seems to me that your commission are preparing for the sea level rise and you are asking suggestions.

These are my suggestions, I think the Commission should do the design standards where you establish and implement building structures in buildings to prevent erosion so people can live in their houses safely because it would make us more resilient to the sea. I also think that the siting and design was a good idea because it will help us with hazards that the sea level will cause. I also think the monitoring idea was good because it will help us understand where the most hazardous areas will be.

Thank you for listening to my recommendations I appreciate it.

From, Dylan Pykett
